Dear, Ms. Jarboe:

Thank you for reaching out to me to try and identify challenges that are faced by businesses within the five business clusters you all work with. Your organization is great in all the things you have done to make Louisville a great place to live in. Your hard work and dedication are amazing, and I cannot thank you enough for everything you have done.

Unfortunately, I am unable to help at this time. My school and work schedules are taking up majority of my days and I have been unable to sit down for at least one day. I am really sorry I am not able to help out at this given moment.

I am willing to help when the time is right. I get a break in the semester around October when Fall break begins and I can start helping when that begins. Again, thank you for reaching out to me and I hope you continue to make Louisville a city everyone will want to live in.

Sincerely,

Jared Borah
